A blend of 50% to 60% Grenache and the balance Syrah, the 2015 Cotes du Rhone les Deux Albions is, in the words of proprietor Louis Barruol, "A great success." I'd have to agree. Scents of fresh blueberries are immediately appealing, while the plump, medium to full-bodied palate ends in a light flurry of tannins. Give it another year in the cellar and drink it over the next 7-8 years.

Tasting Note

A singed mesquite note leads the way for this medium-weight, fleshy offering, which delivers dark plum and fig sauce flavors backed by a sanguine hint on the finish. There's a dark earth echo as well. Tasted three times, with consistent notes. Drink now through 2018. 4,600 cases made.

CHÂTEAU DE SAINT-COSME Côtes du Rhône Les Deux Albion 2015 – 92 points

"Impressive pepper and spice aromas with blackberry and almost tarry accents. The palate has a deep-set black fruit and licorice core. Exceptional depth and a smoky, alluring finish. A star of CdR. Drink now."
